Product Description

DESCRIPTION

Steel strips have strong ductility, tensile strength, and fracture resistance.

It also adopts special rust prevention treatment technology, effectively resisting the erosion of environmental factors such as moisture and oxidation, greatly extending its service life.

The ductility of steel strips enables them to exhibit good flexibility and deformation under external forces. Meanwhile, the high tensile strength of the steel strip ensures that it will not easily break or fail even under high tensile stress, ensuring the safety and stability of the packaging.

It can be used to secure and bundle various goods, providing stable and reliable packaging effects for heavy and light items. At the same time, its lightweight and easy to operate characteristics make the packaging process simpler and faster, improving work efficiency.
