Product Description

DESCRIPTION

Steel strip is a material that uses hot-dip galvanizing and special rust prevention treatment technology, effectively resisting the erosion of environmental factors such as moisture and oxidation, greatly extending its service life. This feature enables the steel strip to maintain good performance even in outdoor or humid environments, reducing the frequency and cost of replacement caused by rust.

It can be used to secure and bundle various goods, providing stable and reliable packaging effects for heavy and light items. Steel strips have become an ideal choice for packaging due to their strong ductility, tensile resistance, and fracture resistance. At the same time, its lightweight and easy to operate characteristics make the packaging process simpler and faster, improving work efficiency.
