Product Description

Manual steel belt baler

This manual steel belt baler is a practical tool designed to meet a wide range of heavy duty packaging needs, especially for steel belts ranging from 12 to 16 mm wide. Its strong binding force and easy operation make it the first choice for many industries such as steel, cotton mills, aluminum and brick factories.

The baler has excellent bunching capacity and can easily cope with the packaging needs of various heavy goods. Its unique mechanical structure design enables the steel strip to closely fit the surface of the goods during the packaging process, providing a strong fixed force to ensure the safety and stability of the goods during transportation and storage. In terms of operation, this manual steel belt baler is designed to be extremely simple. Users can easily complete the packaging work by following simple steps. Without complex training or guidance, you can get started and use it, which greatly improves work efficiency.

In addition, this baler is extremely versatile. It is not only suitable for steel, aluminum and other metal materials, but also can be used for cotton textiles, bricks and other non-metallic materials packaging. Its powerful functions and wide applicability make it an indispensable packaging tool for many enterprises.

Overall, this manual steel belt baler is ideal for handling heavy packaging tasks thanks to its strong binding force, easy operation and wide range of applications. Whether in the metal material processing industry, or in other fields, it can play an excellent performance to meet a variety of packaging needs.
