Product Description

Pneumatic strapping tools and strapping machines

In the field of industrial packaging, efficient and reliable packaging equipment can significantly enhance operational efficiency and reduce labor costs. The KZ19B pneumatic strapping machine is specially designed for 19mm wide steel straps and is suitable for the strapping and fixation of medium-sized goods. It is widely used in metal processing, building materials, logistics and other industries. With its lightweight, flexible operation and high performance, the KZ19B has become an ideal choice for small and medium-sized packaging operations.

Our Product Introduction

Specially optimized for 19mm wide steel straps, it ensures a perfect match between the packing straps and the equipment, avoiding problems such as loose locking or insufficient tension caused by size mismatch.

It provides a tensioning force of up to 6000N, ensuring that the steel belt closely adheres to the goods and preventing loosening or scattering during transportation. It is particularly suitable for the fixation of medium-sized industrial materials.

The clamping opening can withstand a tensile force of 9000N, ensuring the lock is firmly fastened. Even under bumpy transportation or heavy loads, it can remain stable, reducing the risk of breakage.

Driven by compressed air, it can complete tensioning, locking and cutting with one click, significantly increasing the packaging speed. Compared with manual tools, the efficiency is improved by more than 50%.

The KZ19B pneumatic strapping machine, with its flexible operation, reliable performance and wide applicability, has become an efficient assistant for medium-sized strapping operations. Whether it is to enhance production efficiency or ensure transportation safety, it can provide stable and economical solutions. Choose KZ19B to make packaging work easier and more efficient
