Product Description

K2 Electric packaging machine

This electric strapping machine is an efficient and intelligent strapping tool, specially designed for scenarios such as logistics transportation, warehousing packaging, and industrial production. It is suitable for PET and PP strapping with a thickness of 13-16mm and can meet the strapping needs of various industries. The equipment adopts a high-strength body structure and is combined with an advanced power system, which can provide adjustable tensile force ranging from 400 to 3200N, ensuring the stable binding of all kinds of goods. Whether it is light cartons or heavy pallets, it can handle them with ease.

In terms of battery life, this device is equipped with a large-capacity 4000mAh lithium battery that supports fast charging. It can be fully charged in just 90 minutes. A single charge can sustain approximately 300 packaging operations, significantly enhancing work efficiency and reducing work interruptions. Meanwhile, the intelligent power management system can display the remaining power in real time, avoiding the impact on work progress due to insufficient power.

In terms of operation, the equipment is equipped with an intelligent numerical control panel. Users can precisely adjust the pulling force and welding time according to different packaging requirements to ensure stable and consistent strapping effects. The humanized design makes the machine easy and intuitive to operate. Even beginners can quickly get the hang of it, reducing training costs. In addition, the machine adopts a lightweight design with a moderate weight, which makes it less prone to fatigue after long-term use and suitable for high-intensity working environments.

This electric strapping machine combines the advantages of high efficiency, durability and portability. It can effectively replace the traditional manual strapping method, significantly improve the strapping efficiency and reduce labor costs. It is an ideal choice for modern logistics and manufacturing enterprises.
